DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This is a much altered and poorly kept cross-gable which in plan and decoration suggests Victorian design. Oral history gathered from more than one person says that the Dalrymples lived here. A title search supports this claim. AAH 4/91 (December 15, 1919) shows James A. and Jesse Dalrymple owning this property. They are presumably the heirs of Jesse J. Dalrymple. JS 2/29 shows that James A. D. Dalrymple owned land in this neighborhood (which the Drum Point Railroad crossed) in 1888.

The house is really part of a large complex which contains a garage, tenant house, corn house, tobacco barn, privy and a meathouse.

Late 19th Century and Early 20th Century building dates all suggested by the materials in these structures. Early hardware (ie. loop-end strap hinger) on the garage and a hewn post-and-beam frame inside of the tobacco barn suggest the existence of at least one earlier structure on the site.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This is a Late 19th Century farm complex which besides the Victorian dwelling contains a tenant house, garage, cornhouse, meathouse, privy and tobacco barn.

The complex suggests the often-made observation that prior to recent times American farms were self-sufficient economic units.
